

Invitation to CQUniversity OctoberVET 2015: 'A quest for research capability'

What:

'OctoberVET' is an annual national event designed to support and showcase research on vocational education and training (VET)

In 2015, the CQUniversity event will be focused on 'A quest for research capability: Challenges and opportunities in bridging the gap between VET and higher education'.

The themes for the OctoberVet event will include:

- What VET Researchers Learn (a showcase for the current grants)
- New developments in research in VET (The Roadshow and the story telling by the DIVTAE staff)
- New programs and Scholarly Activity in VET (Bachelor of Logistics and Hotel Management).
- Better training for a better workforce: Research for VET Innovation (Interactive workshop session)
- Expert panel discussion: research partnerships: 'A quest for research capability'

When:

Friday: 16 October, 2015.

Program: from 10-4.15pm

Lunch: from 12.30-1.30pm

Where:

CQUniversity Mackay

Don't miss out!!

OctoberVET 2015 includes a mix of presentations, workshop activities and a panel session.

During OctoberVET, you can expect to:

- Enjoy a free lunch and afternoon tea
- Meet other staff from the University who are already doing VET research
- Learn about the broader research operations across the University
- Share thoughts about your own research interests, and what research areas might be explored through the Division of Industry, Vocational Training and Access Education in the future.

Everyone is welcome! You do not need to be an active researcher, or hold any research qualifications to come along - you just need to be interested in learning more about VET research.

This event is supported by CQUniversity Research Office, the Division of Industry, Vocational Training and Access Education and the Australian VET Research Association (AVETRA).
